Mr. Lackey also spoke briefly of the Alumni Association, stating that one of its aims is to secure employment for its members. He stated further that all the graduates of the school who desired work have positions. In referring to the proposed new building for the Business High School Mr. Lackey said that a site has already been provided.

"The Commissioners of the District of Columbia, upon recommendation of the

of Columbia.

In speaking of the new woman he said he did not mean the unladylike woman, the flirt, or the one who shirked the responsibilities of home life. "The new woman I refer to," said Mr. Burkett, "is the energetic, ambitious, gentle young woman who is competing with the men of this country in business and professional pursuits. The great question for man to solve today is how he will keep pace with this new woman. She has driven him from the teachers' desk, has taken his place as amanuensis, is entering the courts, and is practicing medicine by his side. She has practicing medicine by his side. She has succeeded because she has worked earnestly. Yet man need not be alarmed by her Attributes of Successful Man. "A man to be successful must be true; he must be energetic and work methodically. One indication of true manhood is wealth. It is a reward for man's careful application, practical methods and constant industry. Not all rich men are true men, perhaps, but nevertheless, wealth, as a rule, is gained by following the principles which is gained by following the principles which distinguish true men.

"Another thing young men should strive for is a good reputation, the respect and confidence of your fellowmen. Popular esteem as a guide to manhood sometimes fails, but the failure is the exception. If your neighbors and business associates think well of you and believe in you it is a good indication of manly qualities. Men are measured by what they do and not by are measured by what they do and not by what they may be able to do." At the close of Mr. Burkett's address a buffet supper was served and an hour was
